GBCA AND OPEN WORKS ANNOUNCE PARTNERSHIP

The New Partnership Will Provide Unique Discounts to Members of the Cultural Community

BALTIMORE, MD—The Greater Baltimore Cultural Alliance \(GBCA\) and Open Works today announced a new partnership that aims to further opportunities for artists and creatives in Baltimore. Beginning May 2023, GBCA members will receive membership and space rental discounts to Open Works, increasing their access to the makerspace's workshops, education, tools, equipment, and more. The partnership will be launched with a happy hour event on Wednesday, May 24, 2023, at Open Works, located at 1400 Greenmount Avenue, Baltimore, MD.

"GBCA is excited and grateful for this new partnership with Open Works, and for the opportunity to increase the affordability of the incredible resources they offer for our members," said Jeannie Howe, Executive Director at GBCA. "Equally important, we look forward to ensuring Open Works' members have access to the funding, industry discounts, promotional tools, and professional development resources GBCA provides to artists and creatives across the region."

"Since we opened in 2016, Open Works has been an affordable resource for Baltimore's working artists, and we're excited to be working with the GBCA to extend those resources even further," said April Danielle Lewis, Director of Community and Culture at Open Works.

As both organizations work to develop an equitable framework for GBCA to distribute two annual memberships to Open Works, this collaboration, among other efforts, reflects the organizations' commitment to addressing the economic challenges the Baltimore arts and culture community is experiencing in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic.
